Rep. Garner of Texas, Is Elected Speaker to End G. O. P. 12-year Reign

SENATE IS REPUBLICAN

First Day Is Devoted to Usual Formalities

By BYRON PRICE.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—A new congress, the seventy-second, born of political unrest, assembled today under a burden of legislative tribulation unparalleled in recent years.

A Republican Senate and a Democratic House answered the call of the constitution for a session expected to increase taxes, revise the banking laws, create new credit agencies, and settle a thousand and one other questions of national policy.

Only the formalities of organization, including the election of John S. Garner, of Texas, as speaker of the House, were in order on the opening day. Business really will begin after President Hoover sends his annual message tomorrow.

At both ends of the capitol, new members and old came together, anxious for the fray. For more than nine months—since March 4—House and Senate chambers have been silent.

Sixteen new senators and nearly 160 new members of the House presented themselves to take the oath. Nearly all of them were first-term Democrats, swept into office when the 1930 election telescoped the top-heavy Republican majorities of Senate and House. The Democratic recruits provided just enough to elect Garner by the narrowest of margins, and just fell short of taking the Senate, too, from Republican control.

Trouble may be in store, at that, for the Senate Republicans, but it did not show itself today. Some of the insurgents want to block the re-election of Moses of New Hampshire.

RICHIE IS BOOMED FOR PRESIDENT NOW

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, who came to Chicago to speak tomorrow night before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, found himself the center of several informal Democratic pow-wows yesterday.

Accompanied by party leaders from his own state, the easterner was surrounded by a group of Illinois party leaders which included Mayor Anton J. Cermak, national committeeman Michael L. Igoe, and Judge Ross C. Hall.

The governor avoided the discussion of economic conditions but of party leaders he said:

"There has been an amazing change of sentiment in the last four years," he said. "It may not be that the country is going Democratic but that's the way it seems."

BEGG NO CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR NOW

Cleveland, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Former Congressman James T. Begg Monday removed himself from the list of possible Republican candidates for governor.

Begg announced he would not seek any office this year, although he would continue to take an active part in politics. He said business affairs were absorbing all his attention.

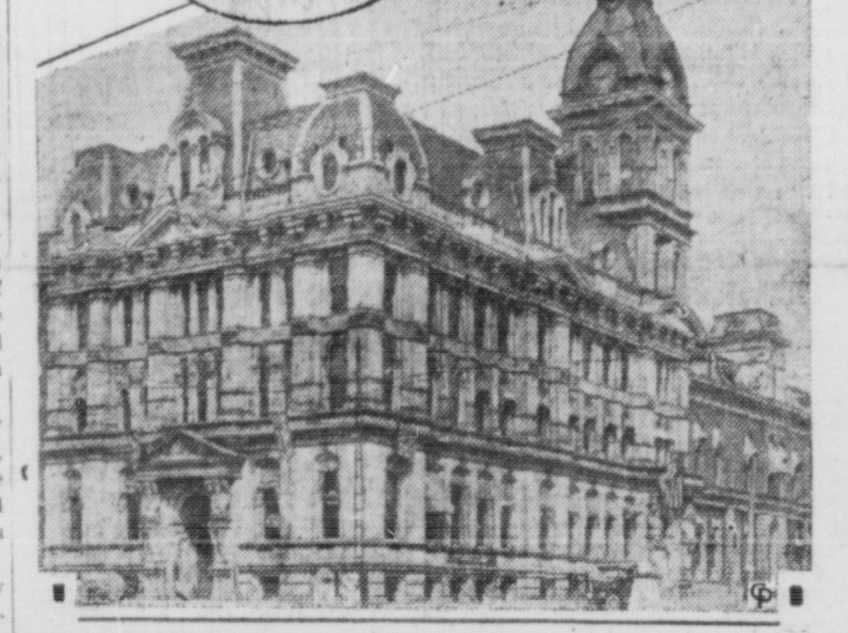

In 1928 Begg ran for the Republican nomination, but lost to former Governor Myers L. Cooper.

ESTATE'S CLAIMANT JAILED WHILE BODY OF "AUNT" EXHUMED

23-Yr-Old Grocery Clerk Held Incommunicado During Inquiry

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The sole heir to the $100,000 estate of Miss Rachael Arvilla Parker, was in jail today while authorities exhumed the body of the aged spinster to determine what caused her death.

While Howard Miller, 23-year old grocery clerk and sole claimant to the estate was held incommunicado, authorities said no charges had been placed against him.

With announcements of Miller's arrest came notice that a suit contesting his right to the estate was being filed in the District Court on the grounds that he was not the nephew of the 81 year old woman who died in Florida last winter. Miss Parker is said to have died following a protracted illness which began shortly after she fell from a wheel chair.

Authorities also planned to investigate the death of Charles S. Hazard, who until his death recently was co-heir to the estate. An analysis by state cremists last week is said to have revealed poison in the vital organs of Hazard. Young Miller is said to have been in constant attendance upon Hazard and Miss Parker in their last illness.

The suit to break the will was filed by Mrs. Grace Hazard Brown daughter of the dead man. She charged domination of Miss Parker by Miller. If Miller's claim is invalidated, she will become sole heiress.

TWO MOTHERS CAUGHT WITH BANDIT GANGS

They Confess Holdups When Given Grilling by Cops; Worked Separately

Cleveland, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Vera Traxler, a 24 year old mother, was in custody of police today as an accomplice in an attempted holdup which ended in the killing of Richard Lohman, one of the robbers, Saturday.

Mrs. Agnes Lohman, widow of the slain man, told police Lohman left home Saturday, with Mrs. Traxler and her husband, Charles, 27. Mrs. Traxler, who was a waitress formerly was acquainted with detectives who questioned her, and her husband signed statements admitting their part in the attempted holdup, police said.

WOMAN TELLS ALL
Tiffin, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Hazel Bullard, 31, of Carey, mother of two children alternately tearful and defiant, confessed that she led three men in the $2,061 holdup of the Bettsville Banking Company of Bettsville Saturday. Prosecutor Paul Flynn announced.

The woman also revealed the hiding place of the money and of the guns which the bandits used. Under a rain barrel at the home of John Wilcox of Carey, who admitted having plotted the robbery, according to Flynn, were found $900 in new bills.

Alva Wilcox, 23, John's son, and John Terry, 43, of Upper Sandusky, who are also held with Mrs. Bullard, denied having taken part in the holdup.

Harry W. Davidson, cashier of the bank, identified Mrs. Bullard, Terry and the younger Wilcox as the three persons who entered the bank and forced him to give them the money.

The elder Wilcox was accused of planning the holdup and dividing the loot.

Terry was arrested at his shoe shop in Carey Saturday night after the sheriff traced the license numbers on an automobile stolen in Findlay.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, opened the thirteenth annual national convention today by demanding for agriculture more federal regulation for grain and cotton exchanges, true equality with other industries, an improved market act, less taxes, and more credit.

"In formulating our program we must make it militant, he declared.

A Few Issues Congress Faces

MATRIMONIAL AGENT ROMEO GOES ON TRIAL IN THEATER FOR MURDER—HOUSE PACKED

Harry Powers Dressed Up in Best for Drama of Real Life

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 7.—(AP)—With a smile on his face, Harry P. Powers went on trial for his life today.

Twelve hundred men and women and children packed Moore's Opera House as the selection of a jury began. They had come from all over the West Virginia mining section to hear again the story most of them know by heart—how Powers wooed many women by mail and became a small town casanova; how two women and three children vanished after being seen with him; how they were traced to a strange building with subterranean chambers Powers had built six miles out in the country; how their bodies were found in a ditch nearby, and how Powers was arrested and charged with killing all five in the windowless garage.

There were hundreds of the curious mining folk who had waited in line outside the opera house for hours only to find the demand for seats greater than the supply. They remained milling about outside, as the light-wooded stage, complete with a border of paper mache trees and a street scene back drop, became the setting for a drama of life and death.

An hour after the questioning of the talesmen began, five of the panel had been excused for having convictions that Powers was guilty of the one murder for which he is on trial, that of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lerke, Northboro, Mass.

The stage of the opera house saw the commencement today of a drama in real life greater than the make believe.

Clarksburg's court house being torn down and a new building under construction made necessary.

WARNINGS GIVEN TO OFFENDERS

Chief Wolf Takes Credit for Reform Wave—No Order Received, He Says SORT OF RETALIATION

Action, He Explains to Spike Graft Gossip

Following quickly on the heels of the wholesale routing out of slot machines in this city Friday night and Saturday, when dozens of these alleged gambling devices were carted out of town by the owners and two were seized by the police, Chief Wolfe visited six places where rum playing had been permitted and two places where race horse betting is alleged to have been under way, informing the proprietors that there is to be no more gambling in the city.

The action was taken, Chief Wolfe explained Monday morning, because reports had come to his ears to the effect that he had been accepting money for permitting the gamblers to operate.

"I had not molested the gambling because the Mayor had issued instructions to that effect, but since reports have been current that I had been paid by the gamblers to leave them alone, I don't intend to remain quiet under such reports any longer, and from now on there will be no more gambling here if I can prevent it," said Chief Wolfe.

"I never have accepted a penny wrongfully from anyone, and never will, and I believe the surest and best way to convince everyone that such is the case is to close up the gambling and keep it closed, and that is just why I intend doing," he continued.

Monday, Chief Wolfe and his patrolmen were making frequent visits to each of the places where the alleged gambling had been stopped, prepared to take into custody anyone found violating the edict.

But none was found. When the Chief passed the word out that no more gambling, betting or punch boards, he made it quite plain.

BOY BANDIT GANG CAUGHT BY POLICE

RAN AWAY FROM HOME AND RENTED ROOM—WOMEN WERE VICTIMS

Cleveland, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—A 15-year-old self-styled gang leader and his "mob" of six runaway juveniles were accused by police today of 17 robberies of women and girls in which more than $250 was taken.

The boys, ranging from 15 to 17 years, were arrested in an East Side rooming house yesterday where they had been living since Nov. 7, paying $8.50 every two weeks for a room.

The young strong-arm men worked in groups of three or four and would seize a woman, twist her wrist and take her purse away from her. The gang came to grief when a pedestrian seized one of them after they had attacked Mrs. Rose Weir, twisting her arm so hard that physicians said her back was injured.

The young fagin, police said, termed his gang "just a bunch of punks" and was scornful of the amount of their loot.

Six of them will be charged with robbery, and the seventh, who acted as a "porter" to the leader, with delinquency.

There is a growing suspicion that finances are lacking to make even a second rate war out of the Jap-Chink bluff.

will be offered on December 15. It is the fourth time this year the treasury has been in the market for more than a billion dollars.

Most of the money—$1,000,000,000—will be used to pay off debts. The remainder will go to current expenses. The offerings will consist of $600,000,000 of one-year 3 1/2 per cent treasury notes, $300,000,000 in 2 1/2 per cent six-month treasury certificates and $400,000,000 in 3 per cent nine-month certificates of indebtedness.

The fact that the issues are for short terms was viewed as indicating officials believe long-term borrowings would not be necessary and that the amount could be paid off a year hence due to improved business conditions.

Legislation to increase taxes is expected to be among the most important subjects considered by congress. The deficit last year was $903,000,000. For five months and three days of the present fiscal year the deficit has amounted to $856,367,587.

LIGHTS PLEASE LARGE CROWDS

Evergreens Being Placed on Sidewalks

The innumerable strands of vari colored lights, forming the chief Christmas decoration in the up-town district, and turned on for the first time Saturday night, have been unhesitatingly pronounced the most beautiful exterior Christmas decorations ever attempted in this city.

Expressions of delight were heard on all sides, and scores of automobiles laden with citizens, drove about the up-town district to admire the garland of color.

Not only was the public generally pleased, but business men who contributed toward the lights were more than satisfied with the result.

Viewing the lights at night is well worth a trip to this city from a wide radius, and it is believed that when the beauty of the decoration becomes generally known, that it will draw heavily from many miles.

Monday the first evergreens were placed in the sidewalks to further add to the holiday attire of the business district, and more attention is given to the class of trees and substantial anchorage than in previous years.

Store fronts are also adding charm to the general scene, and helping radiate the Christmas spirit as it has never before been displayed here.

A. Carson, Harry McClure, Waldo Binegar, Ralph Henkle, N. H. Limes and Homer H. Patton. There's a reason why Bermuda onions, direct from Bermuda, are not so strong as some of the other onions, particularly in the local markets!

Bermudas being sold in the local markets are chiefly the Texas onion.

P. O. E. OBSERVES LODGE OF SORROW

ANNUAL SERVICES HELD SUNDAY, FATHER FOGARTY DELIVERS ADDRESS

The B. P. O. E. observed its annual Lodge of Sorrow Sunday afternoon in the lodge room, an assemblage of Elks, their relatives and friends.

This memorial is always outstanding in the special lodge services of the year. Its remembrance of departed lodge brothers was most impressively observed in the extremely beautiful services of Sunday afternoon. The Exalted Ruler, J. J. Kelley, opened the ceremonies with a brief address, forcefully bringing to the large gathering the object and purpose of their assembling for this memorial service. Members in attendance responded to the roll call by the secretary, Dr. Clayton V. Lanum.

The memorial address was delivered by Rev. Father Fogarty, of St. Colman's church. It was one of the finest addresses ever presented at this annual Lodge of Sorrow—appealing and eloquent in its remembrance of the dead and in its sympathy for the living.

Rev. Father Fogarty gave concise explanation of the cardinal principles of the order and their exploitation in the splendid charities and other good works of the order.

The beauty of the music added greatly to the enjoyment and impressiveness of the service. The chorus included sopranos Mrs. Roberta Harvey, Miss Sara Swishel, Miss Virginia Crawford; contraltos, Mrs. Paul Carman, Miss Sarah Darnell; tenors, Mr. Belford Carpenter, Mr. Glenn Roberts, bass, Mr. Ralph Lloyd, Edward Mershon, Adrian Kissling. Mr. Warren Schleich was at the piano. The singers were in fine harmony and they sang "Radiant Morn", "Passed Away" and, in closing, "Now the Day is Over." The lodge room was effectively decorated in chrysanthemums and greenery.

CONGRESS SESSION IS BEGUN MONDAY

shire as president pro tem, and they are threatening a battle later in the week. For today, the procedure was in one two three order. The gavel rap at noon by Vice President Curtis, a prayer, taking of the oath by new senators, appointment of a committee to notify the president the senate was in session, and recess until tomorrow.

DEMOCRAT HOUSE SPEAKER

John N. Garner, representative in the House from Texas for the last 22 years, today was elected speaker.

By their victory, the Democrats took control of the House for the first time in 12 years. They have 219 seats to 214 for the Republicans and one vacancy from New Hampshire. The Republican House leadership controversy was ended today when Representative Tilson of Connecticut conceded the place to Representative Snell of New York, the party's speakership nominee.

Both Representatives Snell and Garner voted present, as did Schneider of Wisconsin.

The votes of Representative Amble and Kading, Republican Independents, went to their college from Wisconsin. Schneider, who the latter had not been nominated. Amble and Kading have contended Snell did not advocate rules as liberal as the Independents in the party desired.

The speakership vote was Garner 218, Snell 207, Schneider 5.

Representative AVAC, farmer-laborer, Minnesota, voted for Schneider. As the meeting hour of noon approached, extra police were put on duty about the Capitol at the approach of several hundred marching demonstrators, petitioning for relief for the unemployed. An attempt by the marchers to invade the Senate floor was repulsed.

A group of women made a demonstration also for equal rights but one feature had to be postponed. Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the new senator from Arkansas and the first woman ever to assume the actual work of a senatorship, decided not to take the oath of office until tomorrow, and a reception in her honor was delayed.

Mrs. Caraway will wait until plans to adopt a resolution of sorrow at the death of her husband, Senator Caraway, have been carried through.

It was evident as the members assembled that the Republicans hoped for bi-partisan consideration of some of the most important of President Hoover's recommendations, to be sent in tomorrow. Senator Watson, the Republican Senate leader said:

"The problems to be presented will be largely of a non-partisan character. The moratorium, taxation, banking laws and all financial and economic problems in the offing will be of this character. I have every reason to believe there will be a measure of cooperation that will result in speedy action and be of benefit to the country."

Walter Newton, one of the President's secretaries, circulated among the gathering House members smiling and jovial.

TWO ARE JUGGED

William Howell and Mack McGriff were taken into custody over the week end, for being intoxicated. They obtained their freedom Monday.

MARAHON GAME OF BRIDGE TO TEST "SYSTEMS" ALL SET; MILLIONS AWAIT RESULTS

New York, Dec. 7.—(P)—A marathon game of cards which is exciting millions of people will start tonight.

One player, whose methods have given him a millionaire's income in so confident that he has bet 5 to 1. The wager is that he will defeat another whom he acknowledges has no superior in actual play.

So much is at stake that the United States army will take care that things are according to Hoyle of a latter day.

Woman is on the same footing as man in a competition, news of which will have fast international transmission.

To the fact that his wife will be his partner and is largely responsible for his success in a game which has brought him romance and riches, Ely Culbertson attributes the widespread interest in his contract bridge match with Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.

After a little ceremony the elaborate drawing room of Culbertson's skyscraper apartment, will be cleared of all but players, referees and scorekeeper. Then begins a test of rival bidding systems.

Culbertson and Lenz have contracted to play 150 rubbers by Jan. 15.

There will be play every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday night. Further sessions will be ordered if necessary.

Culbertson has posted $5,000 against $1,000 by Lenz. Any winners go to charity.

But much more than $5,000 is involved. The prestige of victory will add enormously to the potential income of the winner from writings, lectures and the like on the "best" system.

Laws and ethics of contract bridge as published by the Whist Club of New York will prevail. The man on the spot to see that they are enforced will be Lieutenant Alfred M. Grubenther, a specialist in the conduct of bridge tournaments.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. STEPHENS

Funeral services for Mrs. Nancy Stephens, 88, who died at her home in Pleasant View, Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock, were held at the late home Monday afternoon at one o'clock, and interment made in the Port William cemetery, Mrs. Stephens being a former resident of the Port William community.

Rev. J. F. Gordon, of Jamestown, conducted the services, which were largely attended.

Mrs. Stephens, widow of John W. Stephens, who died 25 years ago, is survived by three sons, Dennis, of Jamestown, Frank, of Marysville and Elvin, of Glen View.

Funeral Director Morrow, of Jeffersonville, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

GOVERNOR'S SECRETARY IS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Carl W. Smith Is Taken from Wreckage Unconscious and Taken to Hospital

Kenton, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Carl W. Smith, of Kenton, secretary to Governor George White, was injured seriously eight miles south of here today, when his automobile crashed into the head of another machine. He received severe cuts on the face, bruises and possible internal injuries.

Smith was unconscious when taken from his car. He was brought to McKirrick Hospital here. Twelve stitches were required to close a cut on his lip and doctors said they would X-ray his right leg to determine if it was fractured.

Smith was enroute to Columbus, after spending the week-end at his home in Kenton. Reports of the accident were that George Stambaugh, of Ada, whose car was immediately in front of Smith's machine, stopped for a school bus, and when Smith attempted to apply his brakes his foot slipped and his machine crashed into the Stambaugh auto. Smith was thrown violently against the steering wheel and was cut by glass from the windshield.

Stambaugh pulled Smith from his machine and brought him to the hospital here.

Smith, a former Kenton and Marion newspaper man, was named secretary by Governor White to succeed A. C. Crouse, Cincinnati, resigned. He served a term as postmaster here, and in 1928 was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State. He let it be known last Saturday that he would seek the Democratic nomination for Congress in the eighth Ohio District at the May primary. He won the nomination in 1930, but was defeated by Grant E. Mouser, Jr., Marion.

Smith went to Lima yesterday to address a meeting of Northwest Ohio Eagles, in place of Governor White, who has not fully recovered from injuries he received in an automobile accident near Findlay some time ago. The governor's collar bone was fractured when his machine skidded from a wet highway into a ditch. After the Lima meeting, Smith went to Kenton.

HENRY LINK'S SISTER KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Mrs. Myrtle Messenger Is Victim of Forced Landing in Storm

Henry Link, of this city, received word late Saturday night that his sister, Mrs. Myrtle Messenger, 40, of Denver, Colorado, en route to visit him in this city, had lost her life in an airplane accident at Kewanee, Illinois, during a blinding sleet storm, Saturday night, when a Barniff Air Lines passenger plane, crashed into a tree and corn crib while making a forced landing.

Mrs. Messenger, who was enroute to Cleveland, where she was to be met by her brother, Dr. Charles Link, of Akron, with whom she was to visit a few days before coming to this city, sustained a broken arm, broken leg and internal injuries. She lived two hours after the crash.

Miss Elma Duncan, of Kansas City, was also probably fatally injured, while three other passengers and the pilot, Jack Ayres, escaped serious injury.

The plane was wrecked and the passengers imprisoned in the cabin for a short time.

The body reached Leesburg Monday morning and was taken to the home of Mrs. I. E. Davis, a sister, where it will remain until the funeral services.

Pending the arrival of her son, Selbert and wife, from the west, funeral arrangements will not be announced.

Mrs. Messenger is well known in this city where she has visited, and was a native of Leesburg.

FAYETTE YOUTH BADLY WOUNDED

When Shot Gun Is Accidentally Discharged

Dale Thompson, 17, son of Mrs. Jennie Thompson, of the Waterloo road, was seriously wounded by the accidental discharge of a shot gun which he was drawing toward himself on a log while hunting near his home, Saturday.

The muscles of the upper portion of his right arm, between the elbow and wrist, were torn away. Suffering seriously from shock and loss of blood he was given medical attention and then removed to St. Francis Hospital, Columbus.

With him at the time of the accident was his brother, Dan, who was himself accidentally wounded twice in a single day while hunting a few years ago.

UNEMPLOYMENT DEMONSTRATIONS STAGED AT CAPITAL

come, singing the "Internationale," hymn of the Communists. Their road took them back over Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House.

The delegation was then led back to the main body of demonstrators which was gathered in front of the central entrance to the Capitol. Senator King of Utah went to the roped-off area in which they were gathered and offered to present any petitions they wished to have before the Senate.

"Just who in the Hell are you anyway?" Benjamin said. "I am Senator King and will be glad to help you."

"We didn't come here to deal with any individuals," Benjamin returned, "and I don't intend to have you present anything for us."

"Very well," King said, walking away.

They then selected a second delegation of three, with one negro included, but it also was refused admittance to the Senate wing of the Capitol by Sergeant-at-Arms Barry.

Protesting, they were once more shoved from the door by policemen. The demonstrators headed by a band, began their march to the Capitol shortly after 10:30.

Men and women, white and negro, they marched four abreast under the sharpest scrutiny of police. Curious spectators viewed the demonstrators in silence.

One large banner immediately behind the band bore the inscription, "down with charity sloop, we want full cash payment."

The crowds of curious onlookers watched in silence.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mansfield, O., (AP)—An illness of several weeks ended in the death of Earl A. Hecht, 39, a factory engineer for the Westinghouse Electric Company. Hecht, formerly associated with the Ohio Brass Company, of Mansfield and Barberton, will be buried here Wednesday.

BAN PUT ON PETTY GAMBLING HERE BY POLICE CHIEF

clear that offenders would immediately be placed under arrest and locked up.

When some of the proprietors questioned the authority of Chief Wolfe he stated:

"I am issuing the order, and I am going to enforce it to the letter" was the disquieting message left with the proprietors by the Chief.

The bombshell was exploded in the ranks of the rum players and race horse betters Saturday night.

"Under existing conditions I wanted to treat all fairly and give them warning before closing in on them," said the Chief, "so they were all warned that the lid was on and that it would remain on—good and tight."

"From now on arrests will be made wherever and whenever gambling is found within the city," continued the chief.

Reports to the effect that outside influence had been brought to bear were denied when Chief Wolfe said that no orders had been received from anyone, and that the move to end gambling had been launched because of the unwarranted reports that bribe money was being paid to him by the gamblers.

Mayor-Elect George H. Worrell who will soon take his seat as the city's chief executive, indicated that the action of Chief Wolfe was not at all displeasing to him and said that when he takes office he will give the police his full support in law enforcement.

Sheriff Minton had previously removed many slot machines outside of the city and had been waiting for the removal of the devices in this city.

Stories of how men who could not afford to do so lost their wages in rum playing, have been in circulation for some time.

It seems that race horse betting had been under way in the city with but little interruption for years, one interruption taking place under Mayor Patton's administration when an electric printer outfit and forms were seized and later turned back to the owner.

For some time the two places where alleged betting has been under way have been located in Fayette street.

MATRIMONIAL AGENT ROMEO GOES ON TRIAL

Assignment of state troopers and sixteen policemen to the courtroom was made to prevent any demonstration or disorder.

The portly, middle aged specialty salesman, who is accused of killing Mrs. Dorothy Lemke in the suburban chambers of his specially constructed garage, was meticulous about his appearance.

His "court room outfit" was neatly pressed serge suit, black oxford, white shirt, and a black and white tie. He wore a pair of tortoise shell glasses which gave him the look of a student, rather than that of a cananova.

The task of selecting a jury was expected to take but a few hours.

Seventy-five farmers, miners, small town business men are on the panel. Women are not eligible in West Virginia.

The trial opened with defense counsel still maintaining a mysterious silence about defense plans.

ESTATE'S CLAIMANT JAILED WHILE BODY OF "AUNT" EXHUMED

heir to the estate. Prosecutor Paul M. Tedrow said Miller denied any knowledge of collusion in preparation of the will.

Corroboration for Miller's claim of relationship to Miss Parker came yesterday from Mrs. G. H. Alward, wife of a Battle Creek chiroprapist, who was quoted as saying she was Miller's mother and that Charles Parker, brother of Miss Parker, was his father. They were married in 1903, Mrs. Alward said, and separated a few months later.

Her son was adopted by Frank H. and Cora Miller in Calhoun county, she said. Frank H. Miller said papers were on file in Calhoun county to substantiate Mrs. Alward's story.

New Philadelphia, O., (AP)—Russell A. Powell, 18, was killed instantly in an automobile collision near Newcomerstown. His mother, Mrs. Anna Powell, and J. H. V. Bunney, Akron, driver of the other car, were not injured. Powell's brother, Vernon, 13, was hurt slightly.

HUNTERS WOUNDED

WIFE-TRADE MURDER TRIAL OPENS WITH SELF DEFENSE PLEA

Admitted Gun-Wielder Is Not Willing to Accept Offer for a Compromise

Mansfield, O., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Charged with killing the man with whom he was alleged to have traded wives, Henry Schwartz was ready to stand trial for the murder today, despite the state's offer to allow him to plead guilty to a lesser charge.

Prosecutor G. E. Kalbfeisch said he was willing to accept a plea of guilty to second degree murder but Schwartz, attorneys announced they would stand on their plea of self defense.

Schwartz is accused of killing Paul Smith last October 18 in what county authorities said was a misunderstanding that followed an arrangement between the two men to trade wives.

Schwartz, officials said, shot Smith with a shotgun when he returned from a trip to Millersburg and found his wife with Smith. He called Sheriff Underwood at once and surrendered, claiming self-defense when arraigned in municipal court on a charge of first degree murder.

The sheriff quoted Schwartz as saying he fired when Smith moved as if to draw a pistol. Schwartz also was accused of the killing by his wife, according to the sheriff.

WHAT DIFFERENCE?

GEORGE WASHINGTON GIVEN CREDIT FOR BEING FIRST TO MAKE ICE CREAM

Washington, December 7.—(AP)—George Washington was credited today with being the first person to make ice cream.

The first president's own words were quoted in support of the claim by the George Washington bicentennial commission. His cash memorandum book on May 17, 1784, contained an expenditure for a "cream machine for ice."

The commission said it was "willing to give Washington credit for it until better proof is forthcoming in favor of someone else."

It has been generally accepted that Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth president, was the inventor of ice cream.

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The stock market oscillated irresolutely today, while a distinctly better tone developed in bonds.

Markets generally were disposed to await developments at Washington, Chicago, Basel, and elsewhere. The convening of congress, the meeting of the railway labor chiefs in Chicago, of the reparations advisory committee at Basel, and important dividend meetings, gave promise of a full week.

A fairly rally developed in the share market during the morning, but was checked around midday by liquidation which was widely regarded in brokerage circles as tax selling. Early advances of 1 to 2 points were largely lost. New York Central sagged 2 points below Saturday's close, and Standard of N. J. more than 1, in fairly active selling. U. S. Steel sold off a point, then recovered partially.

The better tone in the bond market, particularly in the rails and foreign, gave fresh evidence of the stilling of much of last week's uneasiness. While Wall Street seems but mildly hopeful of the results of the meeting of railway labor delegates, to consider the carriers' request for a reduction in wages, Wall Street does not anticipate a serious controversy. An early and favorable decision from the Interstate Commerce Commission on the carriers' qualified acceptance of the increased freight rate plan was again rumored.

Merchant's Spray Device Cools Air In Store

Borger, Texas.—(AP)—"Bill" Henderson, Borger merchant, has invented a new air cooler for store buildings and homes. Water filtered through nine layers of cloth is whipped into spray by an electric fan. Henderson says this reduces room temperatures to between 78 and 82 degrees.

HIKERS HELP HOSPITALS

Leeds, England.—(AP)—Hikers who get lifts from motorists are to help Leeds's hospitals. For 10 shillings (about $2.50) a motorist may buy a book of two-penny tickets. People give lifts are asked to buy a ticket—amount a nickel. The money goes to the hospital.

Market Report

Fayette Producers' Association

The hog markets Monday rebounded to the new low prices of the last of last week and came back 15c to 25c higher with 65,000 hogs on the Chicago market with 45,000 direct. A question might be raised as to what would have happened if all these hogs had been dumped on the market. Receipts at 12 markets on hogs last week were 180,000 more than receipts for the corresponding week a year ago. This is directly in line with the June pig survey which showed that the spring farrow was 2 1/2 per cent greater than a year ago and a great increase in the intentions of fall farrow. Last week, November 30 to December 5, the Fayette Producers' Association handled for the farmers of the county, a total of 39 decks of livestock including 2552 hogs, 110 calves and cattle and 149 sheep and lambs. Top prices received by farmers on hogs was $4.80 per cwt.; on calves $8.35 per cwt.; on lambs $5.50 per cwt.

The cooperative association offers a complete, satisfactory and economical method of marketing livestock to the farmers of the county.

WOOL MARKET

Boston, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Quotations on domestic wools are fully steady as compared with a week ago, despite the recent slower movement. A firm undertone in the market appears to be based upon trade estimates that the supply of domestic wool is actually lighter and much smaller in relation to consumption than a year ago. Receipts of domestic wool at Boston during the week ending Dec. 5, were 709,000 pounds, as compared with 294,300 pounds during the previous week.

BRIDGE CLASSES AT STUTSON'S THIS WEEK

Washington's numerous bridge players are stirred to interest in the coming of Mr. Rufus Steele, widely known bridge authority, to The Frank L. Stutson Co. store for a week of lectures and instruction to those who wish to be Stutson's guests for this unusual opportunity.

Mr. Steele arrived Monday morning and gave his opening lecture and supervision of play at two o'clock in the afternoon. He will lecture and instruct each day of the week at two o'clock and on Tuesday and Friday evenings there will be classes for all who wish to attend. Thursday evening will be set aside for men and all men who are interested in bridge are invited.

Mr. Steele is a firm advocate of the Culbertson system of play and enthusiastic over the way it has been developed in the Bland club, recently winner in the Cleveland bridge tournament. He is convinced that through this system a perfect picture of the hands can be presented to the partners. He will supervise the hands of players, and give special instruction upon this building up of the hands.

Mr. Steele is confident that Mr. Culbertson will win in the tournament with Sidney Lentz, which is being followed by the keenest interest by bridge players all over the world.

In order to stimulate further interest in local bridge Rolla Johnson, manager of The Stutson store, is offering a prize to the high score winner in any bridge club in the city. Clubs are asked to turn in the high score after each session, whether the club play contract or auction bridge. These scores will be posted in the store and at the end of eight weeks the prize will be awarded.

LIVING AND LOVING

BY VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I would like you to tell me whether I have done right by leaving my husband. I kept company with him a year and a half. He used to tell me lots of things, how he could save money and would make me a good home."

"We have been married two years and have a one-year-old baby boy. Three times I've gone to live with him in two or three rooms. I tried to struggle and make a home for the three of us, but what are you going to do when you are being clean, honest and trustworthy and the other half isn't?"

"I am 19, a good housekeeper and cook. I like to go to work and earn money to make a cozy home, but I guess I got the wrong man, because this husband of mine does not like to work. He only wants barely enough money to live on. I found this out too late. You never know a man until you are married to him. He was very clever in his talk and blames everything on his wife."

"He still claims he loves me more than anything in this world. Would a man be a liar and unfair if he loved with a clean love?"

"V. HONEYBOY."
It's sometimes sadly, sometimes beautifully, true that one never knows the person one marries until after the wedding bells have ceased pealing. In your case the awakening has been painful.

I think you are justified in leaving your husband if he is all that you say—won't work, continually lies and is untrue. Maybe you are lucky to have learned early in your married life and have the power to earn money to take care of yourself and baby without his help.

Are you sure he would not have done better, however, if you had been content to stay at home and take care of the house and baby? I know it is miserable just trying to get by without saving anything or getting ahead. Sometimes one has to do it, however, for a time, at least.

If you are sure that you are not to blame for your trouble and that your husband is merely a corner loafer, maybe it would be better to stay apart, as you are able to work and have someone to take care of baby, but he should contribute to the support of the child.

Dear Diary

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

MONDAY NIGHT.

DEAR DIARY: I wish Nate were not so cynical about matrimony. Well, I realize I'm sort of giving myself away to you—and I suppose he is far too discerning not to know that my intentions are honorable!

During that dinner in his apartment he managed to keep up conversation. I was a little too awed by it all... the luxurious furniture, the mellow lights, the servants, the delicious food, and most of all, Nate and the force of his charms, to make mental notes of all the things I'd like to record.

Diary, I kept wanting to ask: "Nate, what if I should use the wrong fork—or what if I should inadvertently spill a chicken leg into my lap? Would you catalogue me as 'miscast'?"

"What if this were real?" I asked myself. "What if I really were mistress of this house... would I know what to do... how to tell the servants to do... how to dress... what to say to Nate's friends... how to entertain?"

You'll never know what horror that thought brought!

Wonder if Nate ever thought about me as a part of his life, as a permanent gadget in his setting? Diary—perhaps it is a mistake of birth—

I should never sit. I should never be at ease. I should never know how to act... never know how to be a great lady. Not in the New York manner.

Or, would I? It's easy to step from a must counter to a limousine in a storbook. And back home when I used to dream of coming to New York you know, Diary, I never thought of being anything more than a good crooner in a Broadway show. The seemed enough.

Of course, I hoped to find love too... but that seemed of less importance, less thrilling than being a good crooner... and being able to afford, say half a dozen pairs of pumps and perhaps three complete costumes.

Finally finger bowls were placed in front of us. The end of that exciting meal had come!

"Shall we have coffee in the library?" Nate asked, across the table.

"Yes—that would be nice," said, hoping it was the correct answer. It was, I guess.

Nate came over as I rose to leave. For a second we were in the dining room alone. He caught my hand and smiled into my eyes. "You forgot to continue your record of life," he said.

"I was afraid it wasn't the record to please you," I countered.

"You're not the wife-type, are you?" he said. I wonder, Diary.

SOCIALIST LEADER ALL SET TO TAKE OVER REIGNS OF GERMAN GOVERNMENT

Hitler, However, Plans No Conquering March on Country's Capital

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Copyright, 1931, by the A. P.)
Berlin, Dec. 7.—(A.P.)—Adolph Hitler, Germany's Fascist National Socialist leader, is not ready to announce the economic reforms he expects his party to carry out if it comes into power, but the question of maintaining the gold standard, he said, will depend largely on the attitude of France.

Nor does he plan a march on Berlin similar to the march on Rome by Premier Mussolini's black-shirt bands a decade ago when the Italian Fascists took over the helm of Italy.

Instead of a Coup D'Etat, he indicated, he depends upon his national socialists to be invested with the governing power by way of the ballot box, in elections to choose members of the Reichstag.

"The enemies of Naziism are dying of starvation, politically speaking," he said last night. "That is, their adherents are dwindling while ours steadily increase. Wherever elections are held we land on top. Only today at Breslau in the university elections 75 per cent of the votes were national socialist."

"March on Berlin? Nonsense!" Asked about whether he would favor abolition of the gold standard, he vigorously and reflectively rubbed his chin.

"Let me make this general observation," he said. "The question of the gold standard depends much on the attitude of France as the strongest European gold power. If France insists on drawing to itself all the gold and disorganizing it only on the basis of political 'hold-up' deals, I can well conceive of a united front in the rest of the world to abandon the gold standard and select some other."

There will be many changes in the laws, he said, when the Nazis take the helm.

"Some day, maybe very soon," he said, there will be new Reichstag elections. That will be our 'march on Berlin' for the overwhelming section of the German people will sweep out candidates into power."

Basel, Switzerland, Dec. 7.—(A.P.)—Alberto Beneduce of Italy (today was elected president of the Young plan advisory committee studying Germany's capacity to pay reparations.

The seven committee members selected him after Walter W. Stewart, the American representative, had declined the nomination. A proposal to elect Mr. Stewart, it was understood, was opposed by the French delegation.

After selecting the chairman the committee chose four additional members, as it is empowered to do under the Young plan. They are Hendryk Collijn of Holland; Otto Rydbeck of Sweden; M. Bindschedler of Switzerland and M. Duritsch of Yugoslavia.

Signor Beneduce's election was compromise after Mr. Stewart had declined the nomination and the committee had been unable to agree on Emile Francqui, the Belgian.

Mr. Stewart's refusal was interpreted as an indication that Washington prefers to remain aloof on the reparations question, in the spirit of the communique which followed the recent meeting between President Hoover and Premier Laval of France.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Floyd Stewart was rushed to The University hospital Columbus, from his home in Bloomingburg, Sunday evening, in the Klever ambulance.

He was suffering with a ruptured appendix and was operated on immediately after the arrival at the hospital.

BERT SHIMP WINS PEACE CONTEST

AWARDS MADE AT CHURCH OF CHRIST SUNDAY

Bert Shimp, contestant from the First Presbyterian Church, was adjudged winner of the Prince of Peace contest held at the Church of Christ, Sunday afternoon, and presided over by High School Principal Dwight Ireland. The subject of his oration was "The Challenge of the Disarmament Conference to America."

Cloyd Richardson was the other contestant, being the winner in the Grace Church contest.

The orators were graded on general effect, fluency and memory, platform presence and voice and articulation, Hon. Oliver S. Nelson, Supt. E. C. Dabe of the Jeffersonville high school, and H. C. Spence, coach of Madison Mills school, were the judges.

Both speakers were roundly praised for their good work, and Cloyd proved himself a good loser by immediately shaking hands with and congratulating his opponent. The friendly feeling between the two contestants had been noted by Mr. Dabe, who announced the awards, and who urged them to always go into every contest in life with a smile.

A small crowd assembled for the contest. The district contest will be held in the near future, and those who heard Shimp deliver the oration feel confident that he will be heard from in the district contest.

"I LIKE the way you put it up to us smokers to judge your cigarette by absolutely real things like mildness and better taste. Sounds like good common sense!"

Fair enough! That's all Chesterfield wants. That's all Chesterfield could ask for and does ask for—a trial.

"Promises fill no sack." After all, it's what you get out of a smoke that counts. And what you get out of Chesterfield, or anything else for that matter, depends on what goes in.

Better tobaccos don't grow than the tobaccos that go into Chesterfield. Ripe. Sweet. Aged and cured for two years under the watchful care of expert chemists.

Better cigarette paper can't be bought. Tasteless. Odorless. Pure!

Sanitary factories. Cleanliness in every step of the process. A purer cigarette than Chesterfield can't be made.

And the package! Absolutely moisture-proof. Sealed tight—yet the simplest thing in the world to open. And attractive to look at.

They're milder—they taste better—they're pure—They Satisfy!

Britain Seeks Market

Launched by the Prince of Wales in a dramatic appeal, a Buy British Goods campaign is being conducted in England for the obvious purpose of making British dollars work for British labor, rather than foreign labor. Every dollar that leave the country represents wages taken from domestic labor.

This campaign, if effective, will distribute some business among English factories and some work among England's idle factory hands, but it cannot do that without ruining the country's importers and taking bread from the mouths of already hard-hit dock hands and shipping workers. It is far from a cure for England's industrial problems, which are the result of loss of world markets for her goods. She has always been an importer of raw materials and an exporter of finished products.

Nor would a Buy American Goods campaign in the United States send its seven million unemployed back to their plows, lathes, mines, picks, desks and counters. The nation's imports are but a drop in the bucket compared with domestic consumption, nor has the import volume escaped the depression unscathed.

When Americans buy foreign goods it is usually because the article cannot be duplicated at home. An embargo on all imports would little benefit the country's basic industries.

The people are not buying too many imports; they are not buying enough domestic goods.

Promptness Above All

The position officially taken by the taxation committee of the Retail Dry Goods Association on the question of new taxes to be imposed by this congress may be said to be the attitude of all business.

Three points are made by the committee. It opposes a sales tax, favors increases in the higher brackets of the income taxes, inheritance taxes and gift taxes, and stresses the importance of immediate action on the tax issue.

Congress should enact by joint resolution the necessary tax revision so that business will know in advance its tax obligations and not be subjected to retroactive tax legislation at the end of the year. Margins of profit are now narrowed to the point where fractions of a cent may mean the difference between a profit and a loss.

Business is opposed to general retail sales taxes, a turnover tax or luxury tax at this time because they would tend to give business another setback by raising prices.

There are as many opinions as to what form the inevitable tax rise should take as there are tax proposals but the nation thinks and speaks as one on the importance of prompt action by congress. Uncertainty taxation is not likely to promote business activity.

New Merchant Marine

When the federal government went into the shipping business after the war it was actuated by the hope of making profitable use of war hulls and of planting the germ of a merchant marine which would carry the American flag on the seven seas and restore the United States to its former leadership among the maritime countries of the world.

From that post-war seed has grown a merchant marine which has recaptured for Uncle Sam a large share of world shipping and which is deemed sufficiently healthy to make it safe for the shipping board to liquidate its affairs and for the government to retire from the shipping business.

The sale of seventy-three vessels during the last fiscal year for one million, eighty-eight thousand, six hundred and eighty dollars permits reduction of the shipping board's budget for next year to one million, nine hundred and seventy dollars. In nineteen twenty-four that budget was forty-eight million, thirty thousand dollars.

Private tonnage has increased as government tonnage has decreased.

The new American merchant marine has continued to grow during the slump in world trade.

TILSON-SNELL FIGHT OF REAL SIGNIFICANCE

G. O. P. Floor Leader Will Eventually Be Speaker According to Tradition

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Dec. 7.—The fight between Congressman Herbrand H. Snell of New York and John Q. Tilson of Connecticut for the Republican leadership of the house of representatives may appear to be a tremendous commotion over nothing important, considering that the present Republican leadership of the lower congressional chamber is, after all, only a minority leadership.

John Q. Tilson Snell for speaker, on a seventh ballot, but Snell and Tilson will battle it out again, after congress convenes, for floor leader, when the Democrats organize the house.

The fight is important, however, for the G. O. P. is likely enough to be in a majority again sooner or later, and the minority leader of today, according to time-honored precedent, will continue to lead them. He presumably would step into the speakership, in fact, a position reckoned by many politicians to be second only to the presidency.

Besides, even now, the Republicans, though in a minority in the popular branch of the national legislature, muster a very large minority, which is of especial importance because of the same partisan complexion as the administration.

To the respective futures of Congressmen Snell and Tilson, in particular, the struggle's outcome is of the most vital consequence.

It means, indeed, the victor's advance to a rating among the most potent of spokesmen in G. O. P. councils; the loser's relegation to that of a mere has-been as a national factor and possibly to his elimination from public life altogether at the next election, for it is wholly improbable that his defeat in the recent encounter will fail to cost him enormously in prestige in his home district.

Incidentally, that the New Yorker and the nutmeg statesman clash as they did at all, hints at an animosity which must long have been smoldering unsuspected in the group of Republican managers at the capital.

With the overthrow of Cannonism, or one-man rule in the house of representatives, an interval of considerable legislative individualism ensued, as old-timers will recall, in house proceedings.

Then, finally, a new dictatorship grew up, during the regime of Speaker Longworth—not a one-man dictatorship, as in the day of Czar Reed and the early part of the Cannon era, but the dictatorship of a triumvirate, consisting of Speaker Longworth, Colonel Tilson, as majority floor leader, and Representative Snell, as chairman of the rules committee, the body responsible for framing the regulations by virtue of which Longworth and the colonel exercised their sway in open session.

Speaker Longworth was, in effect, the boss triumvir, with Colonel Tilson as his first and Congressman Snell as his second lieutenant.

There was no obvious distinction between them. Still that order of (so to express it) seniority was tacitly recognized.

The congressional elections of 1930, as everyone saw, had badly shattered the triumvirate's power, since it was an authority which required a sizeable majority back of it to function perfectly, and the 1930 result had reduced its margin to a number of votes it was possible to count on the fingers of one hand.

For all that, it was a majority. The G. O. P. lawmakers accordingly caucused early last spring and chose the already established group of three to take the helm as usual upon the convening of congress December 7 and handle it as effectively as possible.

This plan was upset by the death of Speaker Longworth. It was further upset by the death of several Republican representatives, elected, followed by the victory of enough Democrats, at special elections called to fill these vacancies, to throw the house majority, by a scant four or five ballots, to the Jeffersonian side of the chamber.

With Speaker Longworth's death trouble began.

Colonel Tilson took it for granted that he was scheduled, as ranking survivor of the triumvirate, to succeed Longworth at the head of the combination.

Representative Snell disputed the colonel's title to consider himself the ranking survivor and claimed the right to step into Longworth's shoes on his own account.

The dispute was an unpleasant one from the outset, due to the contention of the colonel and his friends that the New Englander's just rights were being questioned, from purely selfish motives, by one who, the colonel felt, should have been first to recognize them.

Relations between the two were not improved by circumlocution of the story that Snell had said his former collaborator even though technically entitled to first consideration, lacked the ability to be trusted in a post of so much responsibility as the G. O. P. house leadership without a super-leader to guide him. Supporters of the colonel aggravated matters by reports of "urban machine" aid back of Snell's candidacy.

It was, in short, so far from a friendly contest, that Washington opinion generally favors the theory of friction between the rivals dating back indefinitely, but reduced to a minimum during Speaker Longworth's day by the Ohioan's influence.

The White House is generally regarded as having favored Tilson. When he lost the speakership nomination, it was considered a blow to the chief executive.

Neither of the pair was very popular among house Republicans. Longworth was, and their dicta was acquiesced in because he dictated that it should be. The colonel, in the nature of his role as floor leader, frequently had to resort to arbitrary methods, which Snell is personally aloof and unapproachable, which is not true of the colonel.

On the whole, perhaps the colonel was the better liked of the two, but the New Yorker—freely known as "Hard-boiled Snell"—had the advantage in the absolute ruthlessness of his tactics. What-ever seemed needful to cripple the colonel's campaign, he unquestionably did. The colonel drew the line at various extremities to which he might have profited by resorting.

Snell also was more pliable in making promises.

The house, for one thing, despite wet claims, is still dry by a wide margin. Snell, whatever his personal views may be, always has rated as a dry stand-patter, Tilson, without being vociferously so, is equally a stand-pat wet and always has been.

Snell is as conservative as Tilson, but nevertheless made pledges to the progressive element among the Republicans in favor of a liberalization of the house rules—demanded by them to prevent suppression of advanced social and economic legislation. Tilson never weakened appreciably in his contention that strict regulation is essential to make proceedings practicable in so large a body.

FISHERMAN'S LIFE ON PAINT CREEK

By ROBERT JONES.

One day I thought I would go fishing.

And so I dug some worms.

I cut a pole from a willow tree, and skipped school for three terms.

I started down to Paint Creek with my pole over my shoulder, but I got in too big a hurry.

And I started over trip again.

I started up town running to try and sell three or four, but when I finally reached there, they made me sell them more.

I started home with three big nickles.

And Jack Hagerty made me buy ten cents worth of pickles.

Charles Smith stole the can and poured them out in a pan and that was the last of the pickles.

I still had five cents when I jumped over the fence.

"But you know how it is," Eleanor Allen came along singing a song.

And I bought her a package of mints.

To My Dear Friends:

THE FACULTY.

TRAFFIC

Due to the extreme traffic congestion in our city, it has been found necessary to provide the utmost protection for school children.

At Sunnyside, Central, and East Side schools, through traffic often times travels at a high speed, and so traffic lights have been installed in order to make street-crossing safer.

Even then the janitors of these schools are present, watching over the children. Janitors record the license numbers of cars which run through the red light at these places.

At Rose Avenue, the lives of school children are not nearly so much endangered as at the three above-mentioned schools. Their janitor here, however, watches the street when the children are leaving.

At Cherry Hill, street-crossings are not overly dangerous, but a railroad nearby proves to be a menace to lives of school children. Each morning and evening as children pass to and from school, the janitor is on watch at these places.

Parents of school children may be assured of good protection to the lives of their children.

EASTSIDE NEWS

The boys and girls of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades have prepared booklets, which they expect to use in their picture study during the coming months. The books have been painted in various patterns and designs, and in this each child has been allowed to express his own individuality. Each room has selected a group of pictures which is adapted to his own particular grade. One picture is taken up each month and studied in detail, after which the picture is placed in the book and a story written about it. Each class is expected to study five or more pictures before the end of the year. Much enthusiasm is being exhibited by the children in the work, and the study promises to be very interesting.

The New Research Speller which is being used in the fourth grade this year is proving to be quite an improvement over last year's text. More interest is being taken in the work and better results are being obtained. Mrs. O'Brian is keeping a record of the class as a whole by means of a graph and also one of each individual.

Those having a record of A at the close of the second term were: Martha Cooper, Charles Douglas, Chester Kneisley, Paul Maughmer, Wendell Nevill, Charles Rhodes, Irene Rossi, Margaret Self, Paul Speakman, Doris Steed, Louise Stewart, Berdina Stolsen, David Stolsen.

LONDON HOLDS EDGE ON WASHINGTON FIVE

The Blue Lions will make their first appearance on the basketball court this season when they meet the London five next Friday night, December 11, on the latter's floor. This will without a doubt be Washington's hardest game this season. London has practically the same lineup they had last year. Washington's team of last season just barely nudged them off for a one point victory and played three over time periods. This year it is a different story, nearly all of Washington's veterans have graduated. McLean is the only veteran player left on the team. Sexton and Samson were alternate players last year.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

A social meeting of the Girls' Athletic Association was held in the auditorium last Thursday evening at seven o'clock. Every girl in high school was invited to attend this meeting.

The program, a very interesting one, consisted of a tap dance by Glendine Naylor and Carol Carlisle; a vocal solo by Dorothy Cron; a duet of popular song by Rosemary Burgett and Jane Pearce; and a violin duet by Mary Chapman and Alice Ferneau. At the close of the meeting the girls gathered around the piano and sang popular songs.

COLLEGE PROFESSOR ADDRESSES CHAPEL

Dr. Richard Allen Foster, assistant professor of English literature at Ohio University, read a number of poems written by boys and girls of Athens' public schools, in last week's chapel.

Dr. Foster has organized a poetry club in Athens, and much enthusiasm is being shown by the members.

The speaker quoted Shelley's definition of poetry, "Poetry is a reward of the happiest and best moments of the happiest and best lives." He also said, "Poetry is a strange thing," and "Poetry is anything that touches us deeply."

Dr. Foster sang a Kentucky folk song, at the close of his lecture. The program was opened with an instrumental duet by Wanda Rue Robinson, flute, and Wanda Runnels, clarinet.

THE FRESHMEN

The freshman class is sponsoring a play for the benefit of the payments on the piano purchased last year by the eighth grade glee club.

The play, "When Fortune Melts Away," is to be presented by the Children's Dramatic Art Classes under the direction of Miss Irene Tobin. It will be presented December 11, 8 o'clock, at the High school building. It is a three act play for children and has an interesting plot.

The committee working with Miss Tobin consists of Elizabeth Godfrey, Margaret Roberts, Betty Brock, Jane Ferneau, Phillip Sheets, Jack Hicks and Carl Theobald.

VOLLEYBALL

The volley ball tournament will end Thursday evening. Senior Onions are leading the other teams namely, Blue Lions, Blue Dragons, Blue Panthers, and Fighting Devils.

The girls athletics are credited by the point system. When a girl gets the required number of points she will receive a letter. Participation in volley ball, basketball, tennis, aerial dart, and folk dancing will give each girl on team a seventy-five points. Any girl playing on team B will receive fifty points and twenty-five points will be given for any girl playing one game.

Ruth Farrell is manager of the teams during this tournament.

Russia in Transition

An American Newspaperman Sees Russia As It is Today

A combing machine in a Russian silk plant.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT

(Copyright by St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Distributed by Central Press).

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Dec. 5.—American women visiting Soviet Russia for the first time are shocked to see husky young women working as section hands on the railroads, handling wheelbarrows of sand and driving huge tractors. They cannot comprehend how their Russian sisters can be so happy under Soviet equality of the sexes.

The visiting Americans forget, if they ever knew, Russia's peasant background and the tradition of work that was ground into Russian women by the old patriarchal system which gave men complete dominance over women.

Emancipation came with the revolution. Soviet legislation bears out Lenin's declaration that "we do not leave one trace of the old czarist laws which placed women in a subordinate and humiliating position." Naturally all of the old inequalities have not yet been eliminated in fact. As in other Soviet instances, the law leads and conditions follow, a reversal of the usual western methods.

No Shirking Hard Labor

About 20 per cent of the industrial workers are women. The percentage, of course, is much higher in office work. Women are not always given the lighter and cleaner tasks. They unload lumber, feed concrete mixers, drive street cars, grease tramway curves, mend roads, run powerful machinery, to mention only a few of their heavier jobs. There are also women traffic policemen, soldiers, ship officers, electrical workers, draftsmen, engineers and foremen.

On the collective and state farms they do their share, sometimes more than their share of the heavy work, just as in the old peasant days, when the women pitched the hay and the men drove the horses.

They are active in the government and in the Communist party. Many are elected to the village Soviets and run the co-operative stores. Mme. Alexandra Kollantai was a commissar of social welfare and later ambassador to Norway. This summer she was the Charge d'Affaires of the Soviet embassy in Paris. There is no position in the Soviet union to which a woman cannot aspire, although it is perhaps significant that no woman has yet been taken into the all-powerful Politbureau.

American engineers assert that the Russian women are much better workers than the men. This is not difficult to understand if one remembers the old tradition of work among women and the tradition of indolence among men. As in Germany, Poland, Hungary and the Scandinavian countries today, the women worked in the fields during the spring, summer and fall, and in winter when the men were asleep on the stoves or drinking vodka, the women were engaged in handicrafts. Even among the aristocracy, the women often managed the estates which the men neglected.

EQUAL PAY WITH MEN

Women received wages equal to those of men even before the piece work payment was established. The American specialists say that they show greater attention to their work, are more loyal and less prone to shiftness than the men.

The writer's own experience in White Russia in 1922-23 bears out this view.

In the Hoover relief work it was necessary to inspect hundreds of orphanages where American food was distributed. In almost every instance institutions managed by women were far superior to those supervised by men. At Smolensk the women director of education showed far greater aptitude for her work than any male official the writer encountered, and much to the writer's discomfort she insisted on driving in an open automobile to visit a children's settlement 20 miles away when the thermometer registered 15 degrees below zero.

The present Russian leaders are cultivating the working tradition among women. Shock brigades of young women vie with similar groups of young men in socialist industrial competition. Young girls take courses in engineering, agriculture and business management in the higher Soviet schools. Young women work 12 to 18 hours a day socialistic "cultural" work exhorting reluctant peasants to join the collectives, build schools and establish libraries. Older women attend the Soviet meetings and take an active interest in local government.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

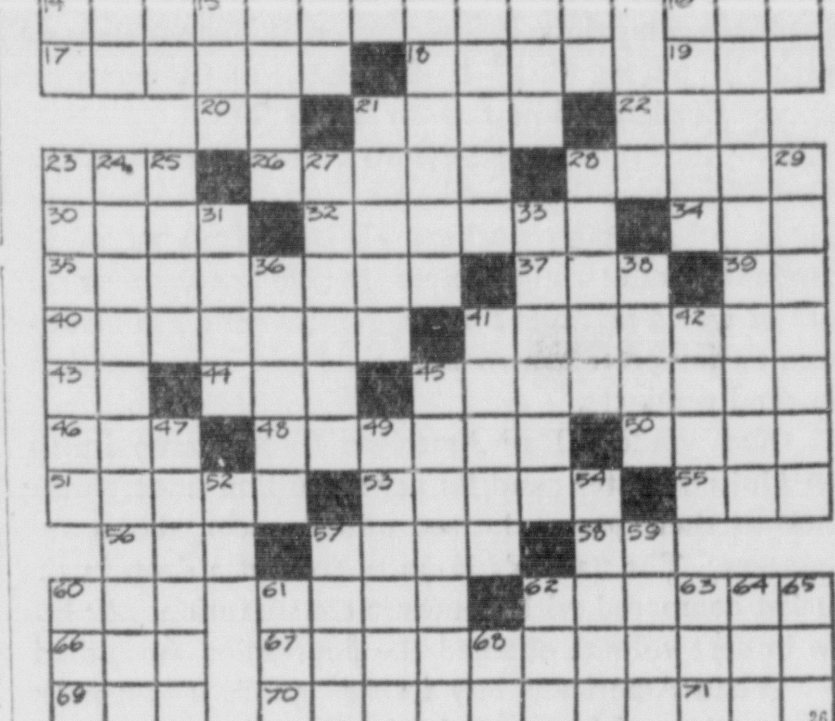

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are sold everywhere. If you cannot find them, write to Dr. J. C. Edwards, 1111 North Dearborn, Chicago, Ill.

Lenin's declaration, "Every cook must know how to manage the state" was of course, an exaggeration yet such hyperbolic slogans are necessary to inspire the slow-minded peasants Lenin knew that the Russian women would work; he wanted them to take an interest in their government.

It was only fair for the Bolsheviks to liberate women after the revolution. In the pre-war days women not only went into exile with their revolutionary husbands, partners in the industrial and governmental development of the union in some of the most dangerous un-

FALLEN KING OF SWAT

To Know His Fate Within Next Three Days If Cub Bosses Have Their Way

MEETING ON TUESDAY

Broadcast and Baseball Two Problems Up

By WILLIAM WEEKES

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(P)—The colors Hack Wilson, the fallen home run hero of the Cubs will wear next season will be determined during the next three days, if the Cub management can find a club willing to buy or trade for the squatty outfielder.

A year ago, after he had set a new National League Home run record, the Cubs probably could have had anything they wished in return for Wilson's services, but, after his unhappy 1931 record, when he batted out less than 15 home runs and hit about 100 points under his 1930 mark, there appear to be no takers. Reports of trades have popped up from time to time, but Wilson is still Cub property and it may become necessary to ask waivers on him, if Owner William Wrigley is as determined to send him elsewhere as he has previously insisted.

The Cub's last big effort to trade or sell Wilson will be made during the annual meetings of the major leagues in Chicago tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

The plan of having both major leagues meet in Chicago is a departure from previous years. The national league by-laws provide that the club owners hold the annual session in New York, but at the request of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of baseball, the routine has been altered. At least two items are due for consideration. Radio broadcasting of games will be discussed by both leagues, while the American league may decide to change the specifications of its official baseball.

The Cubs, whether or not Wilson is sold or traded, are after another outfielder, and President Wrigley has plenty of cash ready with which to go after a Chuck Klein or a Paul Waner.

Masonic Bowling Tourney Shuffled

Springfield, O., Dec. 7.—(P)—Newark and Cincinnati bowlers monopolized the high places in Ohio State Masonic bowling tournament today.

Standings were shuffled in all divisions yesterday in the first day of the meet. J. Lloyd of Newark, rolled 644 to take first place in the Class A singles, ranked first in Class A doubles with 1801 and paired with Pratt of Newark to lead the Class A doubles with 1175. M. Wood of Lima was only one pin behind Lloyd in singles.

B. Stowe of Cincinnati, did the same thing in Class B. He led the singles division with 662, the all-events with 1,700, and paired with Grosse to land first in the doubles with 1044.

CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES AS RESULT OF 32 FATALITIES PLANNED—KICKOFF ATTACKED

By HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Dec. 7.—(P)—On the widely disputed subject of the kickoff with its possibility of dangerous mass interference, the nation's football coaches have arrayed themselves in two camps widely divergent in point of view.

On one point, however, there seems to be general agreement that is, that the 32 fatalities reported so far this season will force later this month a serious discussion of the problem particularly as it involves the kickoff and the wedge formation.

Comments obtained by the Associated Press from representative coaches developed in general two distinct schools of thought. One of these would retain the kickoff as it is; the other would alter the rules in some manner so that the wedge formation, either could be legislated out of existence or at least be given less chance to organize. Virtually all coaches favor retention of the kickoff in some form or other.

One group suggested the kickoff be made from a tee as it used to be. The argument was that by use of the tee the ball would describe a loftier arc and give the kicking side more time to get down the field, before it could get itself properly organized.

Approval, either complete or modified, of this idea came from Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova; Heinie Miller, Temple; Tuss McLaughry, Brown; A. A. Tate, Lehigh; Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt; Jim Oberlander, Wesleyan; Elmer Henderson, Tulsa; Bill Amos, Washington & Jefferson; Walter Mahan, West Virginia; Clarence Overend, Carnegie Tech; William J. Galvin, Trinity and others.

In opposition were Dr. F. A. Lambert and Sam Willaman, Ohio State; Wallace Wade, Duke; Jimmy Crowley, Michigan State; Harry Mehre, Georgia; Harvey Harman, Penn; Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech; Bernie Bierman, Tulane; Mal Stevens, Yale; Babe Hollingberry, Washington State; Jock Sutherland, Pitt and others.

Much of the opposition was based on the fact that the kickoff often would go over the goal line and be put in play by the receiving team on its 20 yard line, thus depriving the game of one of its most spectacular features, the runback of kick offs.

PINCKERT, SCHWARTZ FINISH CAREERS IN BLAZE OF GLORY

New York.—(P)—Two great backs, and old rivals in one of the country's outstanding intersectional contests, for the second straight year find themselves running mates on The Associated Press All-America team.

They are Erny Pinckert, block-er extraordinary of the University of Southern California, and Marchmont Schwartz, who in the opinion of an overwhelming majority of experts, is the outstanding ball carrier of the year.

This is the last year of football for both. Schwartz intends to return to the Notre Dame law school next year, but will be ineligible for further competition. Pinckert, who is taking a course in art and architecture, will be graduated before another football season rolls around.

Both backs are finishing three years of competition, and both have been outstanding in every game played this year. In the game in which Pinckert and his Trojan mates avenged a 27-0 drubbing last year by Notre Dame, by beating out the "Fighting Irish" 16-14 in the final quarter, Schwartz was the outstanding player on the field. He gained 80 yards, averaging nearly five yards a trip.

In the early season game in which Northwestern fought Notre Dame to a 0-0 tie in a sea of mud, Schwartz also averaged five yards every time he lugged the ball. He punted that day for an average of 46 yards with a wet, heavy ball. He dominated all other games in

Shaver Climbing Up Scorer List

New York, Dec. 7.—(P)—Gaius Shaver's three-touchdown spurs against Washington last week enabled the star Southern California quarterback to replace Nollie Feltz of Tulane in fourth place in the National list of individual football scorers compiled by the Associated Press. Shaver now has scored 88 points while Feltz, who was idle on Saturday, has 87.

Shaver still has two games to play and Feltz' one. Neither can hope to overhaul either Bob Campbell of West Liberty, with 116 points, or Bob Monnett of Michigan State with 127.

In "Good Old Days" Such Would Not Have Been Too Great a Hope

Local Lights Now on Hunt of a Good Matchmaker

An effort to resume boxing and wrestling shows in Washington C. H. is being made.

Officials of the Emco Athletic Club have put their heads together and decided that it is about time to revive such activities after the lull of the last couple of years.

There have, in the meantime, been attempts to put on exhibitions but most of them have met with both financial and attendance reverses. Last summer found three shows combining the sports at the old fair grounds but lack of support was the final status of them.

Remembering the "good old days" when boxing and wrestling were in their prime in this city several years ago, the Emco authorities struck upon this plan of again promoting shows.

The tentative plans as have been outlined roughly include either boxing or wrestling, maybe both, at the rate of about one show a week. It is hoped that good enough material can be obtained to insure crowds that may mean the continuance of such programs throughout the winters. The Army has been selected as the probable site.

The question of selecting a capable matchmaker who will arrange for the contestants now faces the backers. They started to work on this phase of it a short time ago and at once it was readily agreed to have a popular out-of-town expert for this capacity. This is logical because a person like this would have a wider association with better-known fighters and could naturally get the "cream of the crop." It is understood that a committee of Emco members has interviewed such matchmakers as Al Haft, Tim Noland, Danny Davis, Jimmie Dunn, and Jim Collins in an effort to obtain their services. These men are all associated with promoting and match-making in nearby cities so that the assistance of any one of this group should go a long way in realizing the goal which has been set before the Emco Club.

Packer-Spartan Game Cancelled

Columbus, O., Dec. 7.—(P)—The National Professional Football League season is ended so far as the Green Bay Packers are concerned.

L. H. Joanness, president of the league-leading team, announced at Chicago yesterday there will be no game between the Packers and the Portsmouth Spartans next Sunday because the game never was scheduled officially.

His statement was made after Harry Snyder, president of the Spartans, arrived in Chicago to complete arrangements for the game. Snyder said the contest had been "tentatively scheduled" and that tickets already had been sold.

But league rules provide that a tentative game may be cancelled by either team involved and Joanness said the Packers were done for the season. The Packers defeated by the Chicago Bears, 7 to 6 yesterday, are at the top of the standing with 12 victories and two defeats.

The New York Giants trimmed Brooklyn yesterday, 19 to 6. Portsmouth played a practice game with the Columbus Taxis, scoring at will to win 101 to 7.

OHIO FOOTBALL CROWDS SHOW SLIGHT SLUMP

Columbus, O., Dec. 7.—(P)—

While gate receipts were smaller due to lower admission prices, attendance at football games in Ohio during the 1931 season approximated that of last year, a survey by athletic officials at the various colleges and universities shows.

Most of the colleges reported a slight dropping off in attendance, but this was offset by increased crowds at others. A few reporting the best season in years, Xavier college in Cincinnati attracted a total of 63,000 persons in six home games as compared with only 30,000 in eight games in 1930.

Gate receipts at Ohio Wesleyan were smaller by $3,000 because of a cut in admission prices but the attendance was greater. Similar reports came from Muskingum, Ohio University and Ohio State. Ohio State's home games drew about 1,000 more fans this year than in 1930.

On the other hand, Wittenberg, Case, Western Reserve and John Carroll reported substantial decreases in attendance. Several institutions plan retrenchments next year but the coaching staffs have been assured of new contracts in most cases.

Young Westerners Lead All Tourney

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—(P)—Two youngsters from the west coast open the second week of the world's pocket billiard championship tournament today. Spencer Livsey, of Los Angeles, who scored last week's upset with a victory over Frank Taberski, veteran Schenectady, N. Y., former champion, encounters Robert Lindblom, of Seattle.

Lindblom failed to win any of his four games last week while Livsey dropped three before defeating Taberski, 125 to 40.

Rudolph and Ralph Greenleaf, New York, also a former champion, topped the standings with three victories each with the latter tied for high run of 85 with Laur. Greenleaf also tied his own record of shortest games with a two-inning win over Livsey.

Defiance, Findlay and Bluffton, the remaining schools in the conference, are scheduling football games with Manchester and Wilmington, Lyne said, and expect them to join the circuit.

Bowling Green and Toledo dropped out of the league with the intention of joining the Ohio Conference.

FISTIC CARD FOR THE WEEK

TWO CHAMPIONS, BATTALINO AND BROUILLARD, FEATURE PROGRAM IN EAST

New York, Dec. 7.—(P)—Christmas fund shows in New York and Cleveland, will benefit this week by the service of two champions, Christopher (Bat) Battalino of Hartford, Conn., and Lou Brouillard of Worcester, Mass.

Battalino, king of the featherweight champion, in a ten-round bout at catchweights in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Brouillard also will leave his welterweight title at home when he steps into the ring against Paul Pirrone of Cleveland in a ten rounder at Cleveland Thursday night. The Cleveland show will be topped by a heavyweight duel between Ernie Schaaf of Boston and Frankie Simms of Cleveland.

Another champion, Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, recognized in some states as flyweight titleholder, will swing into action at San Francisco Friday night, meeting Canto Robledo of Pasadena in a ten round non-title fray.

One of the most interesting fistic carnivals of the week will take place at Chicago Friday when ten light heavyweights start an elimination tournament designed to produce an outstanding challenger for Maxie, who has agreed to meet the eventual survivor.

Northwest's Loop Reported Filled

Defiance, O., Dec. 7.—(P)—Manchester (Ind.) and Wilmington colleges will replace the gaps left in the Northwest Ohio Conference by the withdrawal of Bowling Green State College and the University of Toledo it was understood today by Paul R. Lyne, coach of Defiance College.

Defiance, Findlay and Bluffton, the remaining schools in the conference, are scheduling football games with Manchester and Wilmington, Lyne said, and expect them to join the circuit.

ROSE TOURNAMENT

Tulane and U. S. C. to Be in Battle Royal

By HERBERT W. BARKER

New York, Dec. 7.—(P)—Sectional title-holders have been crowned in all eight of the country's major football groups or conferences and the prize award of all, the mythical national champion, hangs on the New Year's Day clash between Tulane and Southern California in the Rose Bowl on January 1.

Four sectional champions of 1930 repeated this year, either outright or partially. Tulane, which shared the Southern conference crown with Alabama a year ago, finished all alone at the top this year, unbeaten and untied in 11 games. Northwestern and Michigan, which tied for the Big Ten Title in 1930, gained a third share with Purdue this season. Utah and Drake again won the Rocky Mountain and Missouri Valley conference championships outright.

Of the four new champions crowned, Southern Methodist replaced Texas in the Southwest; Southern California ousted Washington State on the Pacific coast, and Nebraska dethroned Kansas in the BBIG Six. In the East, where no generally recognized champion can be expected, Bucknell finished with the best record this season.

In the slim schedule for this week two games stand out. Army and Navy will renew their ancient rivalry in the Yankee stadium here Saturday for the benefit of the unemployed. As Los Angeles, Southern California, making its last stand before the Rose Bowl game, will tackle the powerful Georgia Bulldogs.

There are four other attractions this week, all for charity. At New York Wednesday, Cornell, Penn, Princeton and Columbia will compete in an elimination tournament similar to that in which Yale emerged the victor over Brown, Holy Cross and Dartmouth last week. On Saturday at Washington, stars of the Alabama teams of 1930 and previous years will play three 20-minute "games" against Georgetown, George Washington and Catholic University. The University of Miami (Fla.) will meet Alabama State Teachers at Miami Friday and Oklahoma will tackle Tulsa at Tulsa Saturday.

Athletic Slate Of Big Ten Cut By Grid Slump

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(P)—Western Conference baseball teams will do their training at home next season. The Illinois indoor relay carnival, one of the midwestern track classics since 1917, will not be held, and schedules in every sport except basketball have been trimmed, all because Big Ten football profits showed a sharp decrease last fall.

These moves were made yesterday at the opening of the Big Ten's annual winter meeting at which little other than finances was discussed. Southern training trips by Illinois, Michigan and occasionally other teams, have been features of the season, but the expense was considered too great to be borne.

The Ohio outdoor relay meet also was dropped.

Wallace Wade, Duke University football coach, has conducted seven schools for gridiron mentors this summer.

Just to pass the time away or, perhaps, really to find out what the French sports fan thinks about, the Parisian newspaper "L'Auto" conducted a contest among its readers with the result that the most noteworthy athletic record-breaking achievement of recent years was declared to be Paavo Nurmi's feat of covering nearly 12 miles in one hour's foot racing at Berlin, in 1923.

The field was wide open but not even patriotic impulses prompted better than a second place for Jules Ladoumeque, the Frenchman who recently started the track world by racing a mile in 4 minutes, 9.15 seconds.

So far as speed is concerned, Flight Lieutenant Stainforth's world air speed record of 407.5 miles per hour, in a British seaplane, was ranked no better than eighth in a list of ten, thereby causing Old John Bull's sporting experts to lift a surprised eyebrow.

Here's L'Auto's list, as decided by the popular poll:

1. Nurmi's hour running record of 19 kilometers 210 meters.
2. Ladoumeque's mile record of 4 minutes 9.15 seconds.
3. Oscar Egg's hour cycling record of 44 kilometers 247 meters.
4. Jarvinen's decathlon record.
5. Rigoulet's two-handed weight-lift of 182.12 kilograms.
6. S. Cator's long jump of "Shape" should not be used loosely to mean manner or condition. Say, "They executed the maneuvers in an expert manner," and not "They executed the maneuvers in good shape."

NATURE AS KILLER TWICE AS DEADLY AS WAR WEAPONS
London—(P)—Old Mother Nature is about twice as efficient in disabling mankind as the most scientific weapons, according to the British Medical Service.
Disease caused two-thirds of the more than 11,000,000 casualties suffered by British forces in the war.
There were nearly half a million cases of malaria in Macedonia and more than six times as many men died of malaria than were killed in action or died of wounds.
Cholera and typhus in Egypt and Mesopotamia did their bit, and common ailments added thousands to the hospital lists.
Of the sick and injured, 93 per cent eventually returned to some form of duty, as against 82 per cent of the wounded.
The surprisingly low figures for mortality from gas are accounted for by the fact that many gassed were listed as killed in action.
More than 96 per cent of gas victims got back into the war.

Wash Foot Of Soil From U. S. In 9,000 Years
Washington—(P)—Every 9,000 years the rivers of the United States are believed to carry enough material to the sea to cover the entire country one foot thick.
The United States coast and geologic survey estimates the material in suspension and solution in river water would equal that amount during that time. Actually erosion is not uniform over the surface of the country.
At this rate of erosion a mile depth of material would be washed from the country's surface in 45,000,000 years.

CHAPTER 47
BRUCE came home from the bank in a race. He was like a lion that had just been loosed from his cage. He slammed the front door so hard that the house rattled. His Aunt Eleanor heard him coming in the driveway, his motor speeding unnecessarily. There were a couple of violent coughs from his engine and then a silence—until the front door slammed.
His aunt was ready for him. She had persuaded Charles by various threats and extortions to stand by her to the end. She had a bottle of smelling salts decoratively placed on the small table near the window. She was, in fact, ready for anything.
Bruce walked straight into the library and tossed his hat on the table. That was the first sign that he was finished—that he was ready for battle, if there had to be one. He was never allowed to bring his hat into the library. This did not escape either his aunt or his uncle.
"Well," he said, in a strange voice, "I know it isn't necessary to tell you why I'm here in this state." His aunt asked innocently, "Why are you so upset?"
Bruce walked over to her. "Aunt Eleanor," he began, "I've always respected the wishes of both you and Uncle Charles. I won't say that I've been an angel, for I haven't. But I don't believe that I've given you a great deal of trouble, either. Do you think so?"
"No, Bruce, we couldn't complain about you," Mr. Durand assured him, quickly. "You've been as good a nephew as anyone could have been."
Eleanor gave Charles a nasty look, but it escaped him.
"Well," Bruce continued, "I've tried to do the things you've always wanted. But I can't see through this. I think it was a rotten thing to do, Aunt Eleanor."
Mrs. Durand felt somewhat ashamed of herself, standing there face to face with Bruce. It wasn't as easy as she had anticipated.
"I really didn't intend that it get into the papers," she hedged. "Mrs. Morse and I simply were talking over the possibility of you and Sybil, well getting married, and I think she misunderstood me. I didn't intend that she actually announce the engagement before we had talked to both you and Sybil concerning it."
"How considerate," Bruce said coldly. "However, that doesn't help the situation any. It has been done, whoever is to blame for it. Apologies won't help any now."
Mrs. Durand bristled at that.
"Apologies? What do you mean? I don't intend to apologize to anyone. There isn't any necessity for that. No one has done anything that calls for an apology."
"It calls for something," Bruce asserted.
Mr. Durand wished he could speak. He desired to inform Bruce that he was for him, that he deplored this act of his wife's. But he couldn't. Eleanor had told him exactly what would occur if he did. And he knew that she meant it. Perhaps, after they had finished the scene, he could get Bruce alone and tell him secretly how he felt about the whole affair.
"Charles," Mrs. Durand demanded, "are you going to allow Bruce to speak this way to me?"
"Be careful what you say, Bruce, please," Mr. Durand pleaded. "You know that your Aunt Eleanor isn't well."
Bruce was hot. He considered the affair an insult to his intelligence and he told his aunt as much. There was no stopping him when once he began. He told his aunt and his uncle that if he had to leave them for the right to live his own life, he was perfectly willing to do so.
His aunt remonstrated with tears and pleas and threats, all of which for the first time that she could remember were unavailing. The more she went the louder Bruce talked. She began to believe that it would be necessary for her to faint and she didn't want to. Nevertheless, there didn't seem to be any other way out of it.
She threw her hand up to her forehead and moaned softly. She knew Charles was standing directly behind her, so she started to sway dangerously.
"I don't think I can stand—"
Bruce went right on talking. Customarily when Aunt Eleanor threw

ITALY USES U. S. TRADE TO PARE BUDGET DEFICIT
Rome—(P)—Italy expects to collect about $20,000,000, or one-tenth of her budget deficit, on goods from the United States.
The newest row of bricks atop her tariff wall, a 15 per cent ad valorem duty and a few special taxes, was announced as intended to yield the shortage, running about $14,000,000 a month. In addition it must yield enough to replace duties lost through lowered imports.
The United States, although offering uniform tariff to all countries, profits by a "most favored nation" clause in a treaty of 60 years ago. Under it the United States is entitled to the lowest tariff applied to any other country.
Germany and America are the countries most affected by the raised customs because they do most business with Italy. Italy buys most from the United States with Germany second. Italy sells most to Germany with the United States second.

Italy is a good customer because the United States sells her about $120,000,000 worth of goods and buys about $70,000,000.
The vigor of Mussolini's action in putting his financial house in order when the storm of the pound sterling blew over the Italian lira, is shown by the sudden drop in the adverse trade balance. In a decade Italian imports have ranged from $250,000,000 to $400,000,000 and last year was the lower figure.

The Duce, by his strong hold on the country's economics, suddenly narrowed the gap and in August the adverse trade balance was only $1,900,000, the lowest since Italian commercial records have been kept.
